(November 2, 2018 - Toronto, ON) British sensation dodie today releases “If I’m Being Honest”, the latest track from the Human EP due for release on January 18, 2019 in digital, CD and vinyl formats worldwide. It follows the EP’s title track, “Human” (feat. Tom Walker), released last month to a rapturous reception, with the song already exceeding 2.5 million Spotify plays and 1.5 million views for the video on YouTube. “Human” was Phil Taggart’s Chillest Record on BBC R1, and received further support from Clara Amfo and Annie Mac. The song also made Apple Music Canada’s, The A-List: Singer/Songwriter and Spotify Canada’s Indie Pop Chillout. Watch the video / listen & pre-order / pre-save Human EP here: <https://ffm.to/dodiehuman>.

Starting with the line ‘I was told this is where I would start loving myself’, “If I’m Being Honest” details the feeling of being gripped by insecurity and self-doubt in the hope of romance: ‘Sadly I just think that I was disgusting today... I’m left a stuttering ten’. The live video, directed by Sammy Paul, sees dodie perform ‘If I’m Being Honest’ in the stunning Piehouse at the Matchstick Theatre, accompanied by a string section.

The 23 year old singer-songwriter from Epping, Essex, is arguably the most successful DIY artist of recent times, having built herself a considerable fanbase since she began uploading music and documenting her life on YouTube from her bedroom aged just 16. dodie now has almost 350 million streams across YouTube, Spotify and Apple Music.

“Human” is a song about connection, deep interest and excitement for a new relationship, in which dodie sings over soaring strings and baritone ukulele: “Paint me in trust, I’ll be your best friend. Call me the one, this night just can’t end.” The Human EP follows two widely successful self-released EPs, 2016’s Intertwined and last year’s You. Both EPs reached Top 40 on the UK official album charts, with You peaking at #6, as well as debuting #55 on the US Billboard 200, an incredible accomplishment considering the release received little to no promotion.
